

WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 4, 1916.

UNITED STATES TROOPS IN MEXICO

(Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.)

The 6th Infantry Drilling in Preparation for Eventualities. Rushing the Enemy with Fixed Bayonets.

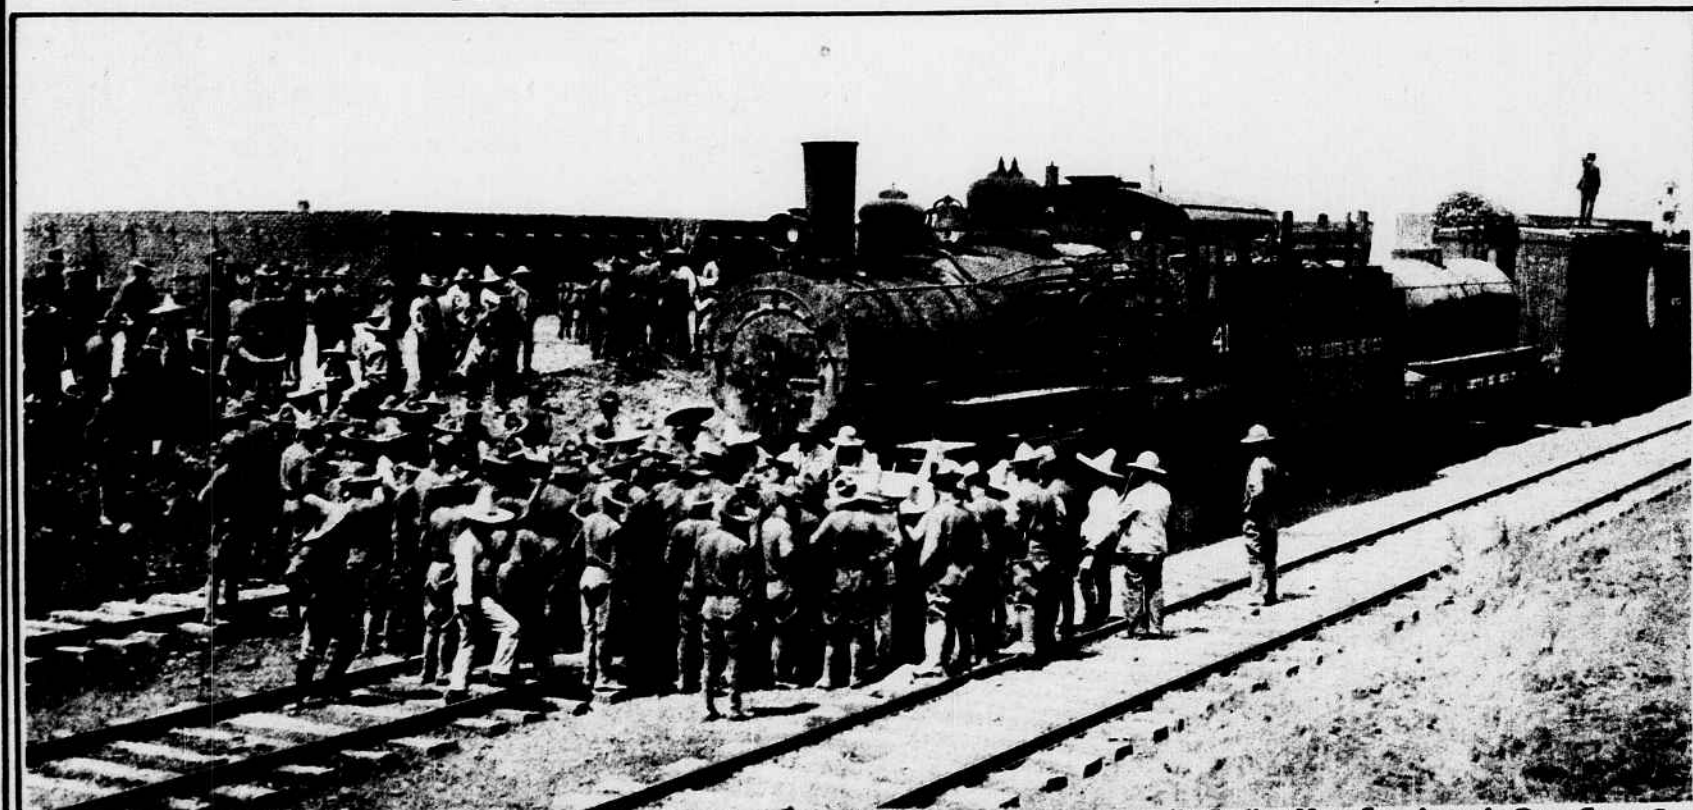

Signalman Stationed "Somewhere" in Mexico Sending a Wigwag Message from the Top of a Pile of Adobe Bricks Made of Dried Mud.

(Copyright, International Film Service.)

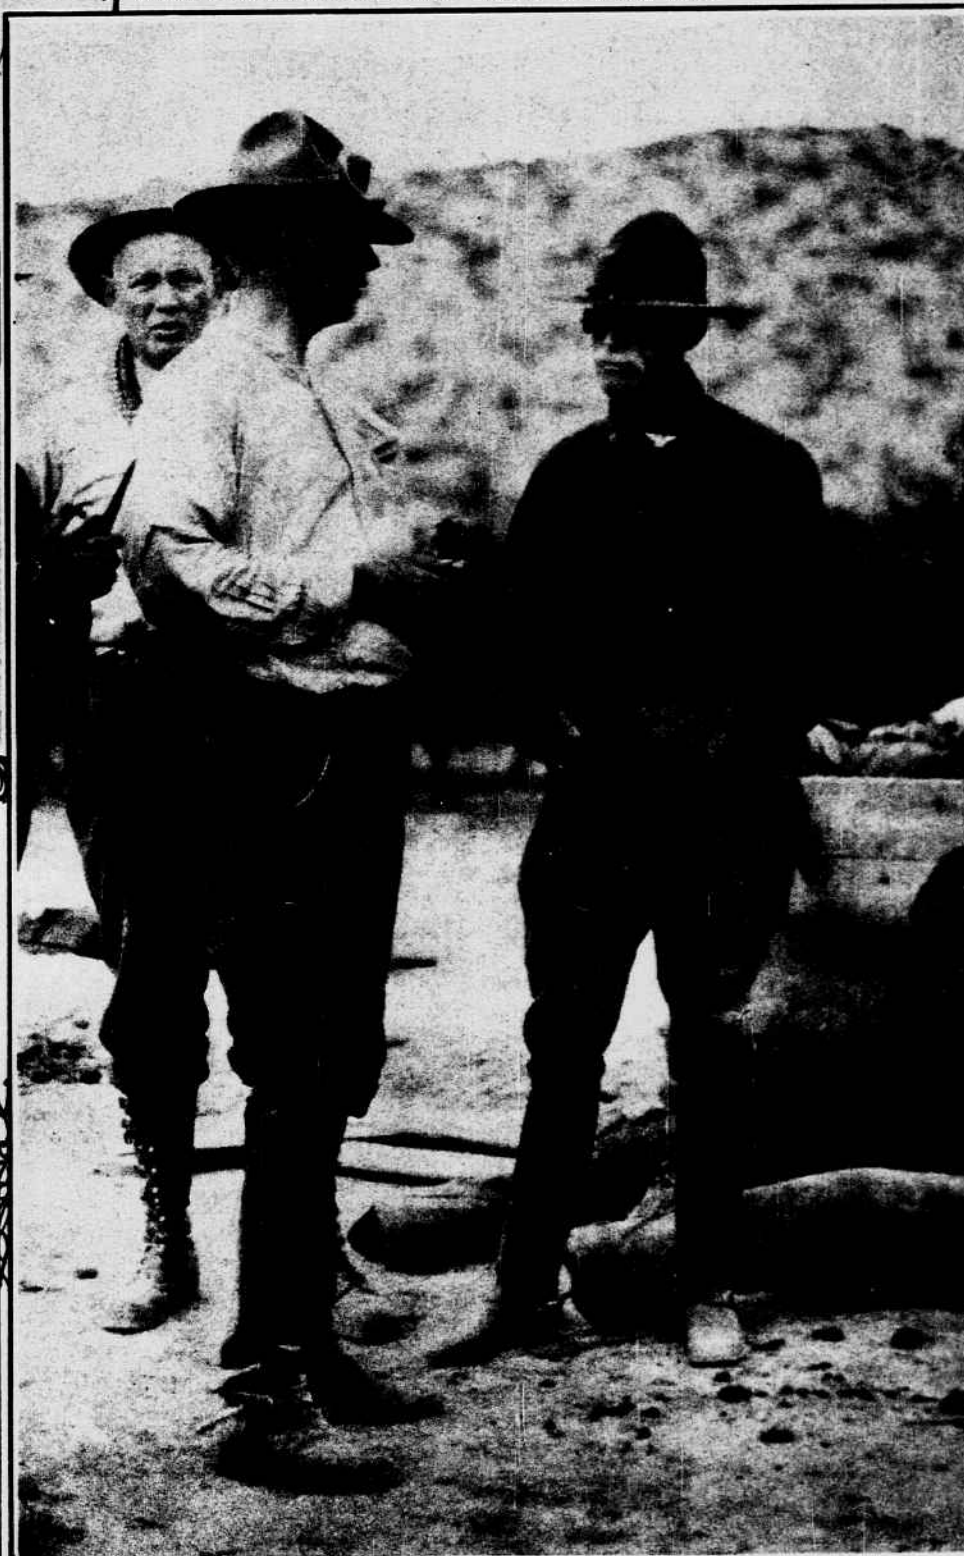

Sergt. Benjamin McGhee of the 13th Cavalry, Who Was Wounded in the Fight at Parral, Being Removed from the Hospital Corps Tent to the Ambulance Which Rushed Him to the Border for Treatment.

(Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.)

American Soldiers Gathered in Front of Locomotive of Train Carrying Carranzistas, Temporarily Stalled Near San Antonio Base Camp of the American Troops in Mexico. The Carranzistas Show No Hesitancy in Mixing Freely With Their Whiter Brethren from Across the Border.

(Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.)

In Center, in His Shirt Sleeves, Is Maj. Langhorne, Who Pursued the Mexicans Who Raided Glenn Springs. On the Right Is Col. Sibley, Who Followed Maj. Langhorne's Handful of Men With Reinforcements.

(Copyright, International Film Service.)